Run2Sky Europe

Extreme sports. High prize money. The Run2Sky Europe pushes the tower running sport into the 4th dimension. Now it is not only about single competitions but an overall scoring of four competitions, of which each is an extreme challenge. The winner of the best-endowed RunUp series worldwide will be determined after the competitions in the following cities: Basel (21.02.09), Stuttgart (10.05.09), Frankfurt (24.05.09) and Berlin (01.06.09). And a prize money of 10.000 Euros attracts. A special application is not necessary to participate. Just be at every single competition. The ten fastest women and men will be added to the scoring system of Run2Sky Europe with their points achieved. The one with the most points after the final SkyRun in Berlin does not only win the series but also the announced prize money. To participate at the tower runs you do not need to be a professional runner but just someone bearing a challenge. All information regarding participation and schedule can be found under www.run2sky-europe.com.

Run2Sky Europe

The tower running sport enters a new dimension in 2009. Run2Sky Europe, that is the best endowed tower running series worldwide, will start with four competitions in Basel (21.02.09), Stuttgart (10.05.09), Frankfurt (24.05.09) and Berlin (01.06.09). The winners will receive prize moneys of a total of 10.000 Euros cash. Already on 21st February the series starts in Basel. After the start of the series in Switzerland there will be a ten weeks break before the next competition in Stuttgart (10th May) and there you will run up the television tower which is the city's landmark. The runners will be confronted with significantly higher steps than in Switzerland. The next challenge is to come only two weeks later. In Frankfurt you will run up the Messeturm. With a height of 257.5 meters it is the highest tower of this exceptional tower running series. In the German city of banks the competitors have the chance to secure their best position to fight for the prize money. The final SkyRun will lead the competitors to the one of the highest buildings of Berlin, the hotel Park Inn am Alexanderplatz. After a total of 137 levels and 3,418 steps the runners have achieved their goal. They do not only have the view over one of the most interesting cities in the world but they were also part of a unique competition worldwide. As an additional reward there is prize money of 10.000 Euros waiting for the winners. Not only professional runners who want to beat their own records but also everybody else who wants to reach the sky is sincerely invited to participate at this exceptional tower running series. Just everyone bearing a challenge is welcome! A special application is not necessary to participate. Just be at every single competition.

Before that you join a Run2Sky Training with the three times winner of the Empire State Building Run-Ups Thomas Dold who will give you useful guidelines for training and competition. All information regarding participation and schedule can be found under www.run2sky-europe.com.
